Vinho Branco / White Wine
Arinto, Perrum e Antão Vaz

Um vinho leve, frutado e fresco com corpo leve e acidez media-alta a balancear um final de boca seco.

Fruity with tropical fruit notes and fresh flavor with balanced acidity and smooth finish.

In 1807 Napoleon ordered the French invasion of Portugal, so the Royal Family took refuge in Brazil. Fifteen years later Dom Pedro declared independence and founded the Republic of Brazil.

Son of King Dom João, Pedro stayed with the Brazilians and declared the Independence of Brazil on September 7, 1822. He was hailed as his emperor on October 12 and defeated all Portuguese forces until March 1824.

Pedro, the Founder, was the first royal character to live like the people from the lands of Bellow Ecuador. He brought with him the intelligence and education in Latin, French and English, as well as the reading and writing habits, which he practiced daily.

The Founder was a polyvalent protagonist, his routine was created with religious, administrative, political while spending time on artistic, domestic, sports and love activities. Undoubtedly multitask and multipotential.

Curious, optimistic, light, smart, friendly and outgoing, his personality inspired the production of these two wines, which brings the freshness of the tropical tastes to the structure of South European wines.
