MALANJE

Vinho Branco / White Wine

Verdelho, Antão Vaz e Arinto

Aroma com notas de fruta tropical, bastante fresco com notas de cascas de citrinos. Palato leve com acidez média sem perder a suavidade.

Final de boca persistente e com a frescura da relva jovem.

Aroma with notes of tropical fruit, very fresh with hints of citrus peel. Light palate with medium acidity without losing softness.

Persistent finish with the freshness of the young grass.

A tribute to ecology, the Giant Black Sable is a rare antelope of the highest mountains, endemic to Africa which can only be found in the province of Majanje.

A region of great altitude, of aromatic plants and green, lush, open country. The plateau of Malanje, land of all creations, is as fertile as the pulse of emotions of her people.

This wine of excellence lends a tribute from the Alentejo to Malanje, celebrating Angola in all her strength, which can be appreciated all over the world.

The Giant Black Sable, a noble African antelope, is found only in the high plains' region of Angola, between the high Cuanza and Luando river. Hunting it is officially prohibited due to its extreme rarity and to the unequaled elegance of its figure, making it a universal reference.

80 km from Malanje, 450 km from Luanda it is possible to spot Kalandula Falls, the largest in Angola and second in Africa, following Victoria falls, between Zambia and Zimbabwe. When the water plunges from that high, you can see smoke, as if you were in the presence of fire, and you can hear thunders, as if you were in the middle of a storm. In the raining season, between march and april, a perfect rainbow comes into the picture.

This scenario of freshness and authenticity that inspired the creation of white Malanje, produced and bottled in the best Alentejo that exists in Portugal, with traditional fermentation and the best native casts.

Safra 2016.
